“ Donald was one of the absolute nicest people I've met my entire life. A downright quality human being. Every time he walked in the building with a smile on his face it would light up the room.

“ My name is Cassandra, and I worked with Don at Blue Triton Brands. One of the many fond memories I have of him is when he informed me that he was going to go back to school. He was nervous he would not do well. I told him he would do great and tried to encourage him whenever we chatted about school. Don was so very proud of his accomplishments each time he completed a class. I too was very proud and would share that with him and encouraged him to continue even when it got hard. What I will miss most is Don calling into the silo office to get his assignments. And chatting about "nothingness" when he returned to the plant. He was a kind soul. I will miss him.
